FLYING NORTH OF THE ALASKAN COAST, THE NAVY P6M-1 SEAMASTER, A LONG RANGE PHOTO-RECONNAISSANCE PLANE, STAYED ON COURSE, THE HIGH-SPEED CAMERAS CLICKING STEADILY, RECORDING THE NORTH AMERICAN COASTLINE BELOW. IT HAD BEEN A ROUTINE, LONG-RANGE FLIGHT UNTIL THEY MADE THEIR TURN NEAR POINT BARROW FOR THE RUN BACK TOWARD CHUKCHI SEA AND THE BEARING STRAIT TO THE SOUTH. THEN, OUT OF THE ARCTIC SKIES, THE ENEMY APPEARED...

YOU WILL FLY ON COURSE 270 DEGREES OR WE WILL DESTROY YOU!
RECORD THESE TRANSMISSIONS, SPARKS! NAVIGATOR, FIGURE WHERE A 270 DEGREE COURSE WOULD TAKE US!
SOMEWHERE NEAR WRANGEL ISLAND, SKIPPER! THE COMMIES HAVE AN AIR-FIELD THERE, I BELIEVE!

THE SEAMASTER CONTINUED ON HER ORIGINAL COURSE...HEADING SOUTH AND WEST TOWARD THE ALASKAN COAST, HEADING FOR THE BASE AT KOTZEBUE, ALASKA! AND THE RED FIGHTERS CAME BACK...

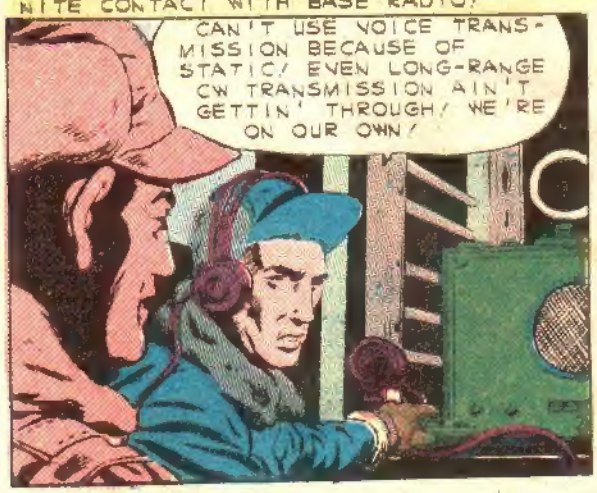
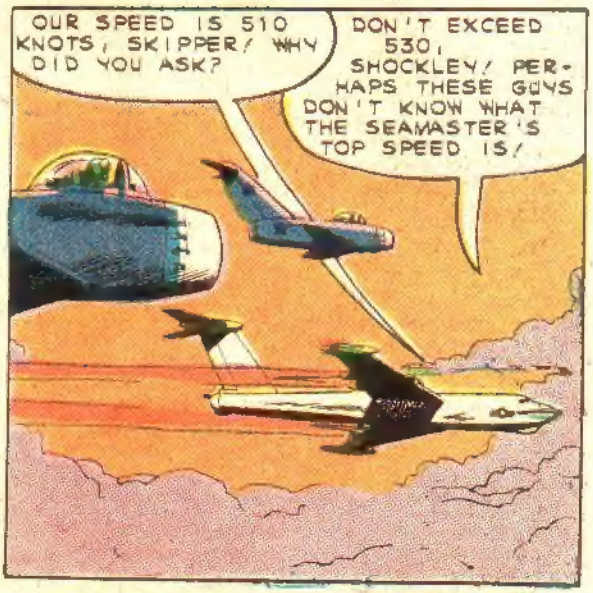
POW! POW! POW!

THERE WERE MAGNETIC STORMS IN THE AREA, LONG RANGE RADIO RECEPTION WAS POOR! THE OPERATOR IN THE P6M-1 DID NOT SUCCEED IN MAKING A DEFINITE CONTACT WITH BASE RADIO!



LT. DINO MORENO, THE RADAR OFFICER, WAS ALREADY SCANNING THE SKIES AND SEAS AT EXTREME RANGE! HE HAD AN IDEA WHAT THEY NEEDED--
THERE'S SOME FOG A LONG, LONG WAY OFF, SKIPPER! MAYBE MORE WILL SHOW UP TO THE WEST! CONDITIONS ARE RIGHT FOR FOG!
YOU'D BETTER PRAY FOR IT, DINO!

I'VE HEARD THAT THE REDS HAVE SOMETHING MYSTERIOUS GOING AT WRANGEL ISLAND, SIR! AT LEAST, WE'LL KNOW EVEN THOUGH THE KNOWLEDGE WON'T DO US ANY GOOD!
KEEP OUR POSITION PINPOINTED, MIKE! WE'RE NOT PRISONERS YET!



OUR SPEED IS 510 KNOTS, SKIPPER! WHY DID YOU ASK?
DON'T EXCEED 530, SHOCKLEY! PERHAPS THESE GUYS DON'T KNOW WHAT THE SEAMASTER'S TOP SPEED IS!

Yes, anyone from 5 to 80 can draw or sketch or paint anything now . . . the very first time you use the "Magic Art Reproducer" like a professional artist—no matter how "hopeless" you think you are! An unlimited variety and amount of drawings can be made. Art is admired and respected by everyone. Most hobbies are expensive, but drawing costs very little, just some inexpensive paper, pencils, crayons, or paint. No costly upkeep, nothing to wear out, no parts to replace. It automatically reproduces anything you want to draw on any sheet of paper. Then easily and quickly follow the lines of the "picture image" with your pencil . . . and you have an accurate original drawing that anyone would think an artist had done. No guesswork, no judging sizes and shapes! Reproduces black and white and actual colors for paintings.

Also makes drawing larger or smaller as you wish.

Anyone can use it on any desk, table, board, etc.—indoors or outdoors! Light and compact to be taken wherever you wish. No other lessons or practice or talent needed! You'll be proud to frame your original drawings for a more distinctive touch to your home. Give them to friends as gifts that are "different," appreciated.

Have fun! Be popular! Everyone will ask you to draw them. You'll be in demand! After a short time, you may find you can draw well without the "Magic Art Reproducer" because you have developed a "knack" and feeling artists have—which may lead to a good paying art career.

MINUS A MAP

Vera had some kind of an idea that I needed a touch of culture. So at her insistance I went with her to the Art Museum. I am willing to concede right now and here that I know about nothing when it comes to looking at a picture. Especially at one of those Old Masters. If somebody wants to pay a couple of hundred thousand dollars for an old piece of canvas with painting on it, that's their right and privilege. But now we were in a section of the museum devoted to modern art. I looked at picture number 42.

"Look like two fried eggs minus the bacon," was my comment.

Vera pinched my right arm and I could see anger written all over her face.

"Louis Dalpo is one of our great young artists. You should meet him. He will attend the affair that Dorothy is giving next month. He is expressing his inner thoughts concerning the morning sun."

"I plead stupidity and ignorance," I told her.

One of the attendants of the museum looked at me. The kind of a look you get when you speak too loudly in a place where silence has a high value. The attendant came over to me.

"Paul Benedict?" he asked.

"In person," I smiled.

He asked me to go with him to the main office. Vera remained gazing at the picture. So I followed him. Then the attendant left and the head of the museum, Dr. Saulnier smiled at me.

"I was told to ask you a simple question," he began. "It goes like this. If an airplane drinks a glass of ginger ale, what happens?"

"Applesauce," was my reply.

"O.K. Commander Benedict," replied Dr. Saulnier. "Use the private phone on my desk. I will go outside while you speak."

I dialed the number left for me and listened attentively to my orders. A plane would pick me up and fly me to a special landing field outside of Chicago. I thanked Dr. Saulnier and then went out to see Vera. She still was looking at that picture of either two eggs or two sunsets.

"We drive out to the airport. You take care of the car. This is an emergency. I don't know when I will be back."

"Just be back in time for the affair that Dorothy is giving," she smiled. "You get your kiss at the airport."

Exactly three hours later I faced Rear Admiral Jonathan Halligan in a room. He introduced me to Dick Marlow. Dick told me the story.

"I own a small flying school outside of Chicago. We give you a half hour of flying instruction for ten bucks. Also take up private parties who want to get the thrill of going up in a plane. About a month ago this fellow comes into my office. He spoke good english but I spotted the accent at once. Said his name was Walter Weelan. He drove up in an expensive car.

I gave him lessons. But I could tell he knew how to handle a plane. He had something up his sleeve so I decided to play dumb. He wanted to know if I knew anything about maps and taking pictures from a plane. Told him I could do it. He sort of feels me out if I need money. Sure I told him because there were a lot of things I wanted to fix around the field. He offers me five hundred dollars for each flight. To make seven of them. Actually he wants me to make for him an air navigational chart covering the 45,000 square mile area from Chicago south to Davenville, east to Lima, Ohio, and west to Moline, Illinois. Then for another two thousand dollars I am to find out for him every radio range, every airplane radio frequency and every tall smokestack in the area. Now what do I do?"

Rear Admiral Jonathan Halligan looked at me and then spoke.

"We checked out the car driven by this man. He is a clerk in the embassy of a certain power that could be fighting us tomorrow. His name is Vashin Djarlinkshibogo. Looks like his first spying assignment. The baby is all yours, Commander."

Often the enemy tries out one of their spies by giving what looks like a simple assignment. If he makes good on this then he is sent out on a tougher job. With this in mind I gave orders to Dick Marlow.

"Do exactly what he says. In fact we will even help you out with some of the details. He will be shadowed constantly. Now there is a certain risk in your job. It is possible that when you are finished an attempt will be made to kill you. This is necessary so that you don't talk about what you did."

Dick went ahead with the idea and I dressed up a mechanic so I could be around the field. Also do some flying if needed. On a Thursday morning this Vashin shows up. He goes up in the plane with Dick. For their first flight to start mapping the area. I waited till they came back. The man left and then I walked over to hanger number two. Dick followed me and told me what had happened.

"I went over the area with him. I am to make the other flights by myself. He paid me for this flight. I will get cash after each flight. I assume you are going to work out for me some fake data."

"Nothing of the kind," I said to a very surprised flyer. "You are going to get the information accurate down to the slightest detail."

"But why?" he half protested.

"No answer yet," I told him. "But this much should make sense. He probably will do some checking himself. If he gets wrong data he will smell something fishy with the deal."

Dick made all the other flights on schedule. He received an envelope after each time with the money. Vashin would sit in his parked car and look around. He grew used to my appearance on the field. He was told also I owned a long range twin motor plane. He spoke to me just before Dick made the last trip.

"That's a nice plane you have. I have a friend who wants to make a business proposition to you and Mr. Marlow. You two go up alone with this man in the plane."

On a Wednseday afternoon the last flight was made and Vashin paid up in full. He was shadowed every minute. Then he told me that the next day a man would fly with the two of us and made us this proposition.

"I have a feeling it will be an attempt to get rid of you and also myself. I have been on the field and certainly could indentify this Vashin. Wonder how it is going to be done?"

The next morning a middle aged man met us on the field. He carried a dispatch case in his right hand. I warmed up my plane and seven men on the field watched the stranger. They were all my "men". Suddenly one of my men went into action. He went up to the stranger.

"I have a gun pointed at you. This is a stick up. Walk with me to the hanger. Try anything funny and you'll get a dose of lead in your back."

He walked to the hanger where my assistant, Paul Wilson, took charge of the dispatch case. He slit it open from the bottom and brought out a small time bomb! It was ticking away. Quickly the mechanism was detached.

"They were going to kill me also," cried the man. "I didn't know there was a bomb in this dispatch case."

Often you have to think of your next step right in the spot. We would all go into the plane as per schedule. Fly to a government airport. Then there would be an item released about a plane blowing up in the air. One that carried three people. This was done and the stranger turned out to be a minor clerk in the enemy's embassy. He really gave us a lot of helpful data about what the enemy was doing. He really didn't know about that time bomb.

Dick turned over to us the money he received from the spy. In turn I gave him a check for three thousand dollars.

"Let us say this is for services rendered," I told him.

There still was something on his mind and he was bothered so I explained it to him.

"Yesterday the U.S. Department of Commerce released a map which shows every detail that was given to Vashin. This map will sell for the sum of 26 cents at the airport. The enemy was giving their spy his first assignment. It looked important to him. Actually it was to test him.

Now he returns and shows how successful he was. They will check the data. Next time they will send him out on a real big mission. We will shadow him continually and get him and others the next time. Big and little fish together."

"Any time I can do anything for you," grinned Dick, "Let me know."

"Just make me a picture of a twin sun set," I laughed. "I want to give it to a certain girl who likes art."
